FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

POWER SEEKER WORKSHOPS AIMED FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

(MIAMI, May 19, 2011) — Job seekers eager to learn how to connect with employers, prepare a resume, and strengthen their job search can register online at no cost for the Power Seeker Workshops, made possible by the coordinated efforts of South Florida Workforce Investment Board and Monster.com, a leading global online career and recruitment resource.

Job seekers from throughout the region are getting the help they need to get a jump start in their careers. The Power Seeker Workshops are high-intensity seminars designed to empower and educate job seekers on how to effectively manage their careers. The workshops are providing proven strategies to help navigate through this competitive job market.

“We are able to extend services to hundreds of job seekers in our region by honing in on the tools and resources necessary to aide them in finding employment during these tough economic times. We hope that job seekers who have not been able to participate will register online. Job seekers will not want to miss out on this great opportunity,” said Rick Beasley, executive director for South Florida Workforce Investment Board.

Techniques on writing a powerful resume, developing job hunting strategies, power interviewing and networking, and creating your digital footprints are some of the dynamic topics covered at the workshops. The materials presented during the workshops are available to participants on a complimentary CD after the event.

The Power Seeker Workshop will take place on Tuesday, May 31, 2011, from 9:00 am until 2:00 pm at Miami Dade College – Homestead Campus 500 College Terrace Homestead, Florida 33030. Space is limited and pre-registration is required to attend the Power Seeker Workshops. Participants can register on-line at no cost at www.southfloridaworkforce.com. Learn more about the Power Seeker Workshops by contacting South Florida Workforce Investment Board at 305-594-7615.
